TRANS-i's 12th Year serving the Transportation Industry
Software Developer Continues to Grow and Deliver Cutting-Edge Technology

Fort Lauderdale, FLORIDA – In an industry characterized by intense challenge and change, Trans-i celebrates its 12th year anniversary this 2008. Since 1996, TSI has developed from an organization offering its first ERP system for a transportation agency, to a major international force in the software development of back office systems for businesses in the different areas of the transportation industry around the globe.

Having been recognized for Excellence in the development of top of the line solutions through different prestigious awards, Trans-i continues to be a trademark in the software development industry. Trans-i's success is driven by a clear, committed core strategy to lead the different areas of the maritime enterprise.

Trans-i's maritime specialists – committed to the long-term success of its customers around the world - have made through these years Carriers, Agents, Terminal Operators and similar enterprises more efficient with solutions for shipping cycle management, terminals and facilities control, dockside and intermodal operations, claims management and more.

As we face the new IT challenges of this 2008 such as growing transaction volumes, security and the need for highly integrated, self-managing infrastructures; Trans-i's technical experts continue to work side by side with customers to help them address these issues through the design and prototyping of advanced e-business solutions while securing global access to most-wanted data.
